{quote} i am deciding my moves on Davit's strategy watching PA always and also focused on the swings for example you can see this PA is bearish and WP is my entry point because you can see on H4 tf PA touched several time to WP but not able to break it means i can enter from that point {image}

I think there is one more factor that should be considered. LOCATION but what exactly is LOCATION?

Look at the larger TFs, DIARY, WEEKLY AND MONTHLY and you will know if you are on the correct side of the highest probability

Hi guys called sick today 🤒🤔

Look at GC hit 78R then drop now bounced to 61R. In my view nice trade to short GU should drop minimum 50-75 pips that would be 2x faster on crosses.

Without going too much into this there are dozens of trading systems based on not 1st move but bounces after so called "confirm" traders.

Idea is basically second dip. This I have been doing for years not just 2nd but 1st 2nd and 3rd 🍷👍🤔

As someone who has been trading with a strategy for a great while that focuses on steady-state markets (staying away when important news comes out) i was wondering: With this method, keeping in mind that its a mix between technicals and fundamentals - are we happy when we have positions open now and price goes our way due to the press conference or we prefer to stay away at times like these? Ofcourse we can have a bias based on how much research and overall knowledge we have, but i dont really feel good about making this many pips on an event...

short answer you need more screen time. News is nothing more then creating volatility. You stay out of it kind of missing out. Rate already stayed the same hence whatever Powell has been dishing-out in broader scheme of things is irrelevant. Main event was the Rate.

Focus on Pivots! PA Events PPE

Dont overthink it and dont over analyze until you become paralyzed. There are obviously X factors and every trade is potentially a loser but also potentially a winner. Edge over large sample size.

I took 667 trades last month. That's EDGE over sample size

Dont want to really pay attention to my haters but find it ironic one of dogs barking the loudest been trading since 2011 all he can show on TE under 170 dollar profit! One could of flipped burgers from 2011 to now and be lot richer 😄

My one days profit dwarfs that most days. 🤔 Now explains the barking poor guy has been struggling for years! Venting frustrations on others

As a footnote this guy has been dishing out for years. What a waste of opportunity to learn instead of attack others.

Let me add one more and I promise wont mention.

Closed EC 2nd time today and turned out nice day despite of erratic PA $523 not bad

In general markets tend to range before major News like NFP. When you see that dont say example I will TP EC at 4980. This is kind of thinking that could cost you missed opportunity or cost you money by holding when market clearly is ranging.

Make a habit 1st when you look at the chart see if market is ranging or trending then look at the Events and how that fits in.

Below EC clearly ranging. Once identified then you can get in out then repeat!

Hi all,

Hoping to be able to share continuing progress of a freshly funded account. I added £1000 on the 24th April. Previous accounts have a mixed history and I felt like I wanted 1 untarnished account solely for pivots and FX. Goal is to try to reach 10% per month, on a fairly consistent basis. Time will tell. Current progress from the 24th April.

Attached Image

	Gain (Difference)
Today	+6.37% (+5.75%)
This Week	+8.18% (+6.47%)
This Month	+7.04% (+4.24%)
This Year	+10.03% (-)

Cheers,
Ben

Understanding is hard work. Ignorance is easier path takes less effort or no effort..

I apologize its out of context in Trading forum and yet FF news has ton of subjects not related to trading....The attacks on myself here made me aware all my attackers are in ignorance about my account- how I trade, how I manage my positions, therefore there is little effort made to know what I do and takes no effort to hate and post vile comments.

Not different when ordinary people succumb to propaganda and turn against their neighbors and start killing them.What took place in Armenia 1915-23 and Jewish Holocaust, Rwanda,Syria,Cambodia similar patterns dehumanization then annihilation.

Most people dont know what genocide is and how it came to be coined as such.

Raphael Lemkin

In 1933 Lemkin made a presentation to the Legal Council of the League of Nations conference on international criminal law in Madrid, for which he prepared an essay on the Crime of Barbarity as a crime against international law. The concept of the crime, which later evolved into the idea of genocide, was based on the Armenian Genocide

Definition of genocide

.. any of the following acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such:

- (a) Killing members of the group;
- (b) Causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group;
- (c) Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
- (d) Imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group;
- (e) Forcibly transferring children of the group to another group.

— Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, Article 2[4]

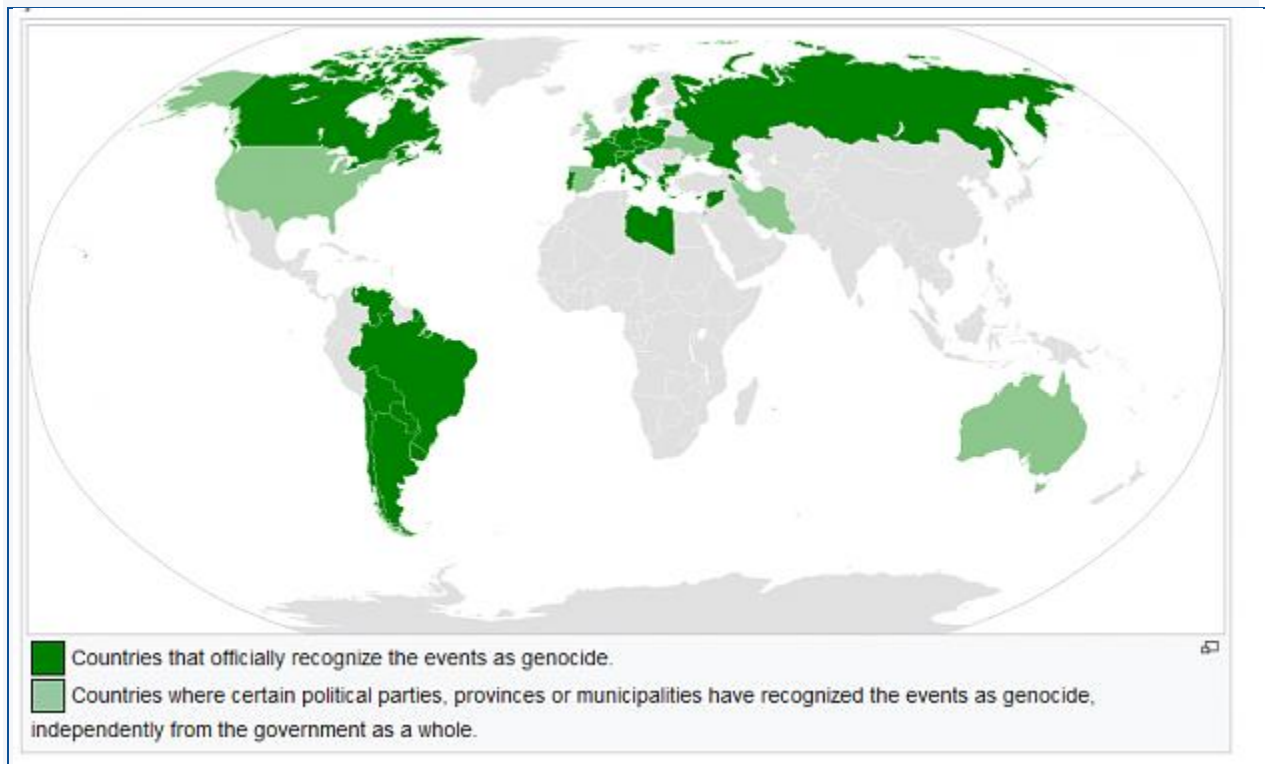

Turkish state still denies the Armenian Genocide and funds universities across developed countries for revisionism. This fight for recognition of Genocide by Turkey is not just about Armenians its about humanity!

Things are in the making right now and start to develop. 😊

The big question for GU is whether to close it before NFP or hold, more in general I've seen that for GBP even in periods of low volatility direction can change quite quickly.

{quote} How can anyone deny a fact that is historical truth for political reasons ? Even the ex-emperor of Japan apologized for war crimes. Anyway reading these things gives you the creeps, but if it is good and right to spread them and make them known in the hope that such atrocities will never happen again. Beyond any rhetoric and in the light of facts like this, human confirms to be the worst living being on earth.

Its more about human psychology...I am suspicious of crowds and this happens in forums trivial things like me sopposidly Photoshoped my results then picked up by other trolls and soon became a "fact"

What happens in Genocide more serious and deadly state or groups dehumanize ethnic group and then proceed killing them.

Why I dislike even religious mass crowds. In Turkey Imams went to small villages and incited ordinary people to kill the Armenians Greeks Assyrians and promised them the heavens which made all the killings even more "justified" by their faith....

To me small and large are interconnected. Decent person can become a murderer when enough vile propaganda is injected. Recent example in California a 19yr old goes to synagogue and starts shooting and killing and wounding people. You wonder how does a 19yr get brainwashed to commit such horrific act?

Dehumanization once that occurs you don't see the other side as humans sometimes less than an object.

{quote} I love reading history now that I am a bit older (I wish I had studied it more when I was younger). The Armenian Genocide is completely new to me which is astounding considering it accounted for 1.5 million lives. I shall give that the attention it deserves and look for more material on that part of history over the weekend. Thanks.

Great book to read by renowned poet Peter Balakian unlikely to happen now. NZD at 1.75 AUD 1.25 will even them out and its not good for both countries. I think and I could be mistaken RBA will look RBNZ to cut 1st There is a balance there.

FYI photo on my profile is Arshile Gorky renowned Armenian abstract expressionist painter. His mother died in his arms from starvation in Turkey...along with numerous family members... He ended up committing a suicide...

Judging on PA does not look like Market expects that otherwise would of seen AUD dumped massively cross the field now not the case.

I always repeat this to myself and more often than not do the same mistake: leave a dollar trade open across NFP.

My GU still in profit, maybe not for long if GBP will continues its imperial march. 😊

What deceived me this time has been flat to bad data on PMI for pound this morning and good forecast on dollar NFP, which actually came out good.

I don't want to imagine how it would have gone if they had come out under expectations, nevertheless dollar selloff caught me by surprise.

Right point to close was on WR38, but hey, this is hindsight and counts for nothing and now ISM exited negative and the disaster is complete.

quote=Davit;12247587] My advise dont sell GU better let MM push it down then you buy it up. Should drop before the Feds tomorrow When trend and fundamentals shift I prefer to go with the market. Market is bullish on the GBP hence I will only buy the dips. Hope this makes sense. I prefer to trade towards most logical direction. Selling GU at this point in my view would be considered a counter trade. Since Feds statement tomorrow carries so much weight and negative sentiment built in and USD so high corrections are natural reactions hence GU could go up another 100pips or more therefore selling it now would be without edge and potentially become a losing trade. This is why trading at Pivots is discretionary. You as a trader must make the adjustments. EA's can't do that. {image}[/quote]

Good morning Davit,

It is interesting that this very morning I was wondering why you chose your unique maroon-brownish background color for your Charts ? My first thought, was perhaps you wanted to have this unique background to easily recognize your charts.

But, this morning, after reading and viewing the artwork of the renown Arshile Gorky, I said by some spiritual karma I noticed how his background of his work resembles the colors of your charts:

Perhaps, consciously, subconsciousness or totally innately an Armenian unconsciousness, you are honoring your heritage within your Soul - especially, for the evil suffrage Armenians have withstood throughout history - similar to the Jews, American Indians, etc !

Thank you for your enlightenment as I too have always thought that we as humans remain innately savages when pushed instead of understandings, rationalism and wisdom to celebrate our differences as a species having over 200,000 years to get things straight !

Peace with you and your family, with respect as always - Hopefully one day the World will be at total respectful peace !

Thus, humbly spoketh

Dr. John

Hi John.Its true I am always been attracted to warm colors. There was a great motorcycle but it was blue and I could not look at it.Yes colors are innate about Armenians.We have been making carpets with natural plant dies for centuries and warm colors are our unconscious and conscious.

Agree on understanding.Most conflicts get be solved if effort has been made.

Unfortunately we live in dangerous times when internet replaces our critical thinking. Young people are more likely to believe conspiracy theories, commit violent acts than ever before. 911 Conspiracy is huge then the Feds, World domination, "globalists" "The Jews" list goes on and on.

What I argue and tell my boys! LEARN critical thinking! Don't believe what you read automatically

Why is this important? Well despite of massive evidence Most Turks in Turkey think there was no genocide at all. This is obviously state brainwashing for decades but some brave Turks have come out and admit it but its just an example why lack of critical thinking prolongs hate and conflicts.

I see GBP turning to positive sentiment but it's hard for me to find reasons why, they bicker about everything, Brexit still unresolved and this morning PMI data not that stellar outcome.

I had to leave for appointment for 2 hours so missed my Cable trade....but thanks to the news and reaction it did drag Aussie with it for a nice profit...not sure how long I should hold but watching closely...

Looks like GU correction on outer R Zones, so currently shorting carefully with small bites:

Attached Image \(click to enlarge\)

Attached Image \(click to enlarge\)

Fri May 3	4:30am	GBP	Services PMI	50.4	50.4	48.9
	5:00am	EUR	CPI Flash Estimate y/y	1.7%	1.6%	1.4%
		EUR	Core CPI Flash Estimate y/y	1.2%	1.0%	0.8%
	8:30am	USD	Average Hourly Earnings m/m	0.2%	0.3%	0.2%
		USD	Non-Farm Employment Change	263K	181K	189K
		USD	Unemployment Rate	3.6%	3.8%	3.8%
	10:00am	USD	ISM Non-Manufacturing PMI	55.5	57.2	56.1

Attached Image \(click to enlarge\)

Interestingly, overall USD seems to 2 positive and 1 negative at 0830 EST with NFP with the bigger positive change with NFP. However, GU became Bullish ? Then, at 10:00 the ISM was negative, with GU reversing southbound but not c/w the Red News against the USD and but c/w with R Zone Location for GU:

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

IMHO, I agree with MD as you never really know what will happen...because in the end, the MMs and Algo Servers are in control looking to outsmart us (the Retailer traders) ! So, I do agree as Davit's edge mainly: PA >> PVT >> Red News [and Intuition, Patience, Courage] with trading small with a adequate equity to sustain a large DD as needed while keeping a soft SL to Close as needed.

Therefore, I suspect that individual population psychological fundamental-technical predictions against the larger sum of the MMs, Algos and fellow professional Forex traders, may add some 10% percent more edge versus the 60-70% of the PA and PVT technical setups as generously shared here. One day, I would love to crutch the numbers to calculate Sensitivity, Specificity, Positive Predictive and Negative Predictive % values for each Red News between the NYO to the LC, Monday thru Friday - and thus weekly, monthly and quarterly via Microsoft Excel to Access Database. I wish I had the energy...maybe someday !

Anyway, this is what I see in my observations, experience and understandings here.

Have a great, safe, healthy and enjoyable weekend my fellow Pivoters - while banking your Green Pips !

Regards,

- John

I should say USD last fundamental data was mixed while GBP was flat to bad.

Let's see on Monday if pound will be able to sustain such a shift against all other currencies.

It may not because in the midst of confusion of BREXIT it makes a rocket moves against all currencies, I am guessing there is a bad period coming for GBP but to cover its nakedness, it has to move up first and if the fall now occur it will be to its balance feet. this is a manipulation from a highest order. It only JPY that is able to hold GBP in the R100 Zone but others it broke out.

This was only local council elections and they are notorious for being used as "protests", notably, the small turn out and both the Labour party and Conservatives losing seats. The Brexit Party wasn't formed in time for those, but if as we expect, they win most of the seats in the European elections (which we have to take part in as we still haven't left yet) then there will be a completely different complexion.

Unusual day to say the least. Amazing part GBP across all currencies has not badged not even a bit which is unusual in forex. Straight up and stayed up for 4hrs.

MY DD is obviously increased. Was waiting to break 75 and could of taken TP (20/20 should of) and got bulldozed by this massive move.

I dont know why ,could be just MM doing what they do occasionally run all stops.

Maybe next week some correction. Not happy with the outcome. That's trading shit happens!

Points that I am studying for Next Week. (EDT TIME) : US inflation, UK GDP, and rate decisions for AUD and NZD

Sun May 5

Sun May 5 21:45 CNY Caixin Services PMI ??? 54.3 54.4

Mon May 6

Mon May 6 21:30 AUD Retail Sales m/m ?? ? 0.2% 0.8%
23:00 NZD Inflation Expectations q/q ?? % 2.0%

Tue May 7

Tue May 7 0:30 AUD Cash Rate 1.25% 1.50%
AUD RBA Rate Statement

Australian rate decision: Tuesday, 0:30. The Reserve Bank of Australia has not changed its interest rates since August 2016. a cut from 1.50% to 1.25% after Q1 inflation came out flat. In addition, the global economy is slowing down and the housing sector is somewhat struggling in the land down under. On the other hand, the labor market is doing well and so is the economy. Not all analysts see a rate cut coming now. Watching for Short AU. The uncertainty implies a substantial AUD/USD reaction to the news

22:00 NZD Official Cash Rate 1.75% 1.75%
NZD RBNZ Monetary Policy Statement
NZD RBNZ Rate Statement

New Zealand rate decision: Wednesday, 22:00. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand last changed the interest rate in November 2016, similar to its neighbor. And also here, disappointing data on several fronts may trigger a rate cut this time. The RBNZ may cut interest rates as well, not only low inflation but also on issues in the labor market. Governor Adrain Orr will hold a press conference at 3:00 GMT.

Wed May 8

8:30 USD FOMC Member Brainard Speaks

ECB Meeting Minutes: Wednesday, 08:30. The European Central Banks left its policy unchanged in April as expected. President Mario Draghi repeated the stance that "risks are moving to the downside" but tried to balance things out by mentioning the upbeat points alongside the concerns. Four weeks have passed since that decision and now we will get to learn about the internal deliberations within the Frankfurt-based institution. The document usually reiterates the same points made in the statement, but this time the tone may be redacted to be more positive after the euro-zone GDP growth rose to 0.4% QoQ. Markets would like to assess when the next rate change is coming.

Thu May 9

8:30 CAD Trade Balance ??? -2.9B

USD Fed Chair Powell Speaks

USD PPI m/m ???% 0.2% 0.6%

21:30 AUD RBA Monetary Policy Statement

Fri May 10

4:30 GBP GDP m/m ???% 0.0% 0.2%

GBP Manufacturing Production m/m ???% 0.1% 0.9%

GBP Prelim GDP q/q ???% 0.5% 0.2%

GBP Prelim Business Investment q/q ?.% -0.9% -0.9%

UK GDP: Friday, 4:30. Britain releases GDP data on a frequent, monthly basis. However, this time it releases the data for March, thus the full data for the past quarter. The economy grew at a meager pace of 0.2% in Q4 and signs of a slowdown have been seen in Q1. Despite signs of recovery in other places, the ongoing Brexit uncertainty probably left the British economy behind. A better figure is likely now.

8:30 CAD Employment Change ?? -7.2K

CAD Unemployment Rate ???% 5.8%

Canadian jobs data: Friday, 8:30. Canada's winning streak of jobs reports came to a halt in March with a loss of 7.2K positions. The unemployment rate stood at 5.8%. A rise is likely now. The Canadian dollar is very sensitive to the data and past experience shows that the moves are slow, allowing retail traders to jump in.

USD CPI m/m ?.% 0.4% 0.4%

USD Core CPI m/m ?.% 0.2% 0.1%

US inflation: Friday, 8:30. US inflation is slowing down, as seen in both the Core CPI that dropped to 2% y/y and in the Fed's preferred gauge, the Core PCE, which slipped to 1.6%. The focus in April's report remains on the yearly core number. A drop below 1.9% will further limit any chances for a rate hike this year.

{quote} Yes but GBP has been manipulated across all pairs.

The attached shows the movement of the eight major currencies on Friday, based on the movement of all 28 individual pairs.

You can see that all other seven currencies dropped against GBP, although USD dropped the most.

Also interesting is the initial dip in the GBP and the extended move in the last hour.

For Time being GBP seems like the risk off "safe heaven" In forex like NE weather changes in 5min 🤔 Just want to say it makes me very happy to see you guys pile the pips. It validates not only the system but shows you executing and improving and becoming consistent. 🍀💰💰💰💰 Does not matter what trolls losers think. Does not matter 1 tiny ounce! what matters your account your money growing! Its the work you put into it! Its you should...

No GBP hasn't become a safe haven. The large pensions funds are not allowed to carry FX exposures on their cross currency investments. Due to the change in the FX value versus their foreign investments at month end they are forced to balance their books to correct this exposure. This is why GBP has been bought. This is what book balancing is all about.

{quote} Re the shown chart, where do I go to read this during trading hours ??

It is based on an indicator I had specifically coded to trace the movements of the eight main currencies from the 28 pairs.

I have it set at 200 hours which of course coincides with the 200 ma (heaven forbid).

It is similar to the strong/weak analysis that Dennis does on BP if you are familiar with that.

Yes it will happen throughout the month but at the end of the month is when the major re balancing happens. You will often see articles mentioning this at the end of the calendar month where they one or another currency needs rebalancing.

They can either do the adjustment in the stock or the FX markets. It is usually done through FX as their is more liquidity and therefore easier to do.

Hi Cryptosurf,

personally I don't believe this was the major driver of the GBP rocket move, it played a role for sure, but it isn't the fundamental reason.

As said I believe more in a EOM rebalancing as copi88 wrote plus some SL hunting.

Since all GBP pairs ended last week at outer levels, all but GJ beyond 138, it will be decisive to see if they will be able to break S/R38 in current week, otherwise we'll be in a strong trend for the pound supported by some fundamental still to be revealed. 😊

Best regards,

The institutions use models to value instruments so they know when they are trading at a discount (the can buy it for cheap and sell it later for a profit) or at a premium (ie can sell something expensive and buy it back later cheaper for a profit). Institutions will only deal when they have value. Those are just two lines that they will use in their models. Here is a chart of GBPUSD with three value lines. You would look to trade it when there is a divergence between value and price.

First is a short where you have divergence on three value lines. Second is a long where you only have two so less probability.

Hi copi88,

Thank you for sharing your knowledge here. It seems to me that this re-balancing, or clearing the books, happens many times on Fridays on one or two cross-pairs when Brokers need to balance their books by suddenly widening their spread, or locking you out when the GBP flies up like what happened to me by one Broker yesterday, but not by another Broker - so, I traded the same GBP pairs there with a small profit.

The MMs and other big Fx companies have big daily expenses (Payrolls, Buildings, utilities), so they will try whatever maneuvers to pick your pockets, besides SL hunting. It is part of the business including the talking-heads Fx News experts on the payroll as well.

So, unless you have an ingenious system that combines anti-MM techniques with some idea of the fundamentals for coming events as graciously shared here by Davit (and others), it is purely gambling and being vulnerable like a "little lamb lost in the woods" - as you well know:

That is my 2 cents on this topic.

So true even if when forecasts print green the currency goes south and that goes to say was the forecast already priced in? Did the pound go north in order for a negative projection around brexit. I came to realise that with fundamentals its good to build a bias but that's not concrete and i can generally find so many Professional fundamental traders that contradict their opinions to each other I suppose that unique in itself and like you said by M.Douglas every moment in the market is unique. I guess that why have the correct MM Mindset is crucial because it gives the opportunity to turn a negative into a positive. Awareness it just that Awareness nothing more nothing less. Even greatest hedge fund managers get it wrong. Its about edging your bets and know that if you get it wrong you have enough capital to go again. I need to invest more time to understand the core action into why price action moves. You see so much empathize on actually candle shapes on small time frames but that's not what comes into mind in big MM. Its all about TIME and LOCATION. How many times have you see a Engulfing Candle or Pinbar around 61 AREA knowing full well the next candle is going to resist this area and you know full well so many people entered on 1 candle stick.

My 2 cents

I think last summer I took some time off and did not post.Just watched PA did not visit FF for good deal of time.Emptied my head and watched PA day in day out.Learned great deal.

I think your mind is restless.I would suggest not post for a week lag off from here and don't read this thread.Just watch PA and observe how news effects pairs. You'll learn great deal on trading and yourself. Cheers.

If anyone wants to do it please do its kind of forum detox.When you are consistently bombarded by posts and everything else you miss the essential that is shrewdly and calmly watching price and making evaluations.Kind of price medication if you will.

Your probably right at the moment i am over analysing everything and at the moment its midnight here in U.K my Mrs things I am anti-social, all I do is digest every forum, website fx related. I might have a month Davit because i feel exhausted with it all. I suppose i badly want it. I jump in the freezing cold sea every morning 5 am just to clear my mind and connect with a high power to just feel connect with Dreams and goals and hopefully purpose. I am intune with PA i mean i can spend hours talking about price action. Lets look at GU its currently at R168 and fib 68 so chance for a reversal are definitely on horizon. Same with E/U at 68 Fib ETC. my focus for the beginning this week week will be buy A/C and sell E/A. I'm just hungry for success Davit because my business is going through struggles and apart from trading i don't know anything else. I hope i am not doing your head in mate.

As Davit suggested many times to watch PA on support an resistance area. That's the area MM look for liquidity. This video helps /reinforce us to focus more on PA in our zone.

FX works just like any other auction market. When your broker (if they are a market maker) accepts your trade they are taking the otherside of that position.

MMs will widen the spread or withdraw their liquidity only if and when they detect large institutional buying or selling pressure as they do not want to be on the otherside of that trade. MM make their money by facilitating large volumes of transactions. They do not care if the market goes up or down. MMs love it when the market trades in a small range. They can just rotate price back and forth and make a fortune. When they detect order flow toxicity (term used by MMs when they detect one side of the orderbook becoming imbalanced) they will pull their liquidity to avoid being on the wrong side of the market move and only apply their minimum required liquidity in the market.

Imagine you are the MM and in a room full of people helping them transact. Some guy wants to buy 50 and another wants to sell 30 so you fill the rest of that buy order and you make the spread as your profit and this happens back and forth over and over price ticks up and then down. Now all of a sudden some guy wants to buy 5000.

What would you do? Would you fill that order at the current price? No you dont want to be on the otherside of a loosing trade so you tell that buyer ok Ill buy your 5000 but you give them a terrible price. You quote them a much much higher price. You have widened the spread or withdrawn your liquidity. This is what happens when you see fast moves away from balance areas.

This is the market makers model and how their business works. They do not care about your 3 lot stop loss.

Here is an interview with a MM goes into an explanation of their business, that they have no directional bias, how they are concerned about volatility how they protect themselves through the options markets, dont care about your stop losses etc etc.

Hi Copi welcome to Pivots! Nice contributions.

I believe Stop hunting is real but its indirect function of large orders trying to get filled. Large orders can't get filled anytime or they may have to pay wider spread and each tic can be worth lot of money hence they need the liquidity to get filled at best possible price therefore hit pockets of Stops and this triggers burst of liquidity and they get filled opposite direction and why most swings basically end with a spike.

Also retail traders place 20-30pips below around numbers major S/R 's and this contributes to getting taken out. Worst place to place Stop is 20pips below or above what you think is "safe" regards

For sure stop loss hunting happens but its not your broker or the market maker that does it. As you say its rather done by the large directional players in the market.

However its usually done to get off their position and not done during an accumulation. Below is a diagram of what a usual market accumulation pattern looks like.

The value line (purple starts to go up) so the institutions will want to get long and so will create a pattern of lower lows and lower highs creating the illusion that the market is in a downward trend to encourage sellers into the market. They will then start to accumulate all that selling at a pace so as not to stop the downward move.

They will also cap any move back to the upside (red boxes) until they have accumulated enough size on their books. Once they detect that selling has started to drop off and no more sellers are coming out to play they will then start the mark up phase. Price moves back into value and starts to pull back. When the market maker detects that buying is now coming in above the 50% pullback level they take this as a warning from the institutions that they want to mark up prices and they pull their liquidity. This is when you get the fast moves away from the balance area.

For them the biggest issue now is how to get off their large buy position. The juxtaposition is that they need to find BUYERS at higher prices. How do they get people to buy something that is more expensive. Well they have created the perfect setup for it. All those sellers have their stops above the market at the red lines.

The institutions term this 'Paycheck' for when they mark up the price through those levels they trigger those stops and those sellers have to become buyers to get off their positions. The institutions have now found their buyers at higher prices and will start getting off their trade in the green box.

The move up is not fuelled by new buyers but rather by the old sellers forced to become buyers.

This is the one advantage retail traders have over the institutions. We can deal anywhere on the chart whereas the institutions cannot due to the size of their positions.

Here is a good example on CL contract

Orange line is value...

Each time price trades below a pivot (blue lines) the liquidity is bought. Look at all the paycheck levels above the market.

Once the MM detects buying above the 50 line they pull their liquidity. You can see it by the long bars, fast money move away from the balance area.

This discussion, and the awesome posts presented by copi88 and Davit in explanation of market structure, and how the retail trader has so little control regarding stops is the very reason the method developed here WORKS!!

Using a $ stop (how much your willing to invest in a trade)/, combined with incremental, small, manageable lots is so much smarter than plunging in with an all or nothing investment that forces you to have tight stops that will almost certainly be taken out at some point. Remember Mark Douglas statement?...”no one can predict what will happen next”

So, if you are new to the method developed by Davit, do not skip this crucial detail in your testing this method. You will be happy you did and you will most certainly live to trade another day.

{quote} I have been trained and mentored by an institutional trader/quant analyst for the last three years who has close to 40 years in the business.....

May I extend to copi88 my gratitude in his timely posts.

My training/mentoring was with a firm allied with a New York and Chicago institution.

copi88 has reinforced the need to use screen time acutely well.

I have taken copi88's chart and "expanded" on it in accordance with my mentors. Some of this I gave in a presentation in August 2006. I apologize to copi88 if he is offended by my additions.

I am a more conservative trader in entering the market at a Swing after a decided down trend. I may enter very few positions but have been trained in patience to wait for a pull-back (Retracement) that confirms that a bottom has formed. With firm PA, I enter more strongly. For the Ellioticians, at the end of Wave 2 with Wave 3, the largest and most profitable in the making.

Retracement: Originally from eSignal

32.8% = >80% probability of a new High (or Low after Up Trend)

50.0% = < or = probability of a new High (or Low after Up Trend)

61.8% = <50% probability of a new High (or Low after Up Trend) EXCEPTION a deep retracement after Downtrend (or Up Trend). Obviously, this cannot be lower than the previous Low.

This is the confirmation I was trained to wait for. It gave confirmation with a high probability that a Bottom had formed and with a new trend developing.

In looking at copi88's chart, rather than "jump in" at what you consider is a "Bottom" (or "Top"), patience may increase the probability of a more successful trade outcome with less DD.

Yes, a Bottom is more highly probable at a Weekly Fibonacci level S61-S78 but all too often the Trend may continue less strong with further downside even exceeding S100-S161.

As shown on the copi88's modified chart, with patience we as retail traders can capitalize on confirmation of a Swing Bottom or Top.

May I caution over analyzing and "adding" more indicators.

Application of Davit's methodology works!

Hello Fellow Traders I'm back after an absence of 6 1/2 months. I accepted a job last fall working in a friends brokerage office and I had to take a pile of courses and certifications that were corporate requirements. That combined with some family health issues something had to go to the wayside, so it was Forex Trading as there just wasn't enough hours in the day. I will be slowly easing back into it, as we are still dealing with some issues. I placed my first trades of the year in the past two weeks, four out of five successful, the one that burned me was Friday mornings GU. I had a good trade buying it and had placed a sell order after NFP looking for a reversal. I came back to my screen a few hours later to discover I was taken out by that unforeseen rocket ship up. Nothing was in the calendar for the day and it turned out to be civic elections in England. I was running a trial version last year of Harmonic Software. I posted a couple of charts on Neil's TDI page last year only to get bitched at by a keyboard Rambo and many accusations hurled about an agenda, etc. Nothing could be farther from the truth, such is the nature of public forums I guess as I have scrolled back through several pages and see it is still periodically going on. I had been running a trial version of software that Scott Carney developed that automatically scans for Harmonic Patterns. Yes I know how to utilize a Fibonacci ruler and measure, however when one of the technical masters develops a program why not utilize it? I might add Scott is also a true gentleman to deal with and speak to. There have been a few minor issues as it was a newly released product and he has been diligently perfecting it. I cleared it with Davit before posting today and I will post some charts with Davits Pivots and the Harmonic pattern on it. The software also does potential pending patterns. I look at as just another tool in our arsenal, and i'll be happy to share them. A) Pivots work we know that. B) One has to do their Fundamental Analysis. C) If we have a great potential pivot level, good fundamental analysis, a corresponding Harmonic Pattern at a Support or Resistance pivot level then we have no guarantees, however a much greater probability of a successful trade. I would suggest watching this video so you can see what the indicator consists of.

Inserted Video

I read deepdrunks post regarding fib levels and indexes. Yes fib levels do work well on indexes too as well as harmonics. I find the German DAX very obedient to pivot levels. On a personal note I'm also an artist and a chess player, however I can't draw or paint to save my life. The medians I work in are wood and metal. I just completed this Kayak a few weeks ago from African Okoume 4mm European standard plywood.

To start with i have to recommend Copi88 for his good in-depth knowledge and kindness to share it with fellow traders. On the topic of stop hunting i can't disagree 100% that is not possible or is not happening, yes is but the percentage is so insignificant that 90% of traders how are losing money are losing it out of their own fault, inexperience and mistake, but as human nature goes none like to accept blames so is easy to pin it on the brokers while in truth is the trader's fault.

The beginning of knowledge is determined by ones ability to learn no matter the condition, i am new in this FF forum and i joined EURUSD ONLY but realized that the forum is all scarpers trading 1,5 and 15mnis finally the ban me from EURUSD ONLY now i only read and not much posting ideas.

Truth be told, i do not believe in stop hunting or any sot of market manipulation, but that does not mean is not possible the MM knows how to do their dirt jobs if they want to and that is part of the things Copi88 is explaining here. If i lose money i first blame myself because as a trader you are fully responsible for all your actions not the brokers so my advice is change your approach and ideology towards the market in general and learn to accept blames.

The market for me is a computer program as we know everything today is done by programmed/automated computers and why would anyone think the market we trade is not? I do not believe in all kinds of info going around this business to me all is hook and anyone that believe in them most especially the news is the fish, certainly the interest rate and monetary police are to my news that i take in my account.

Think about it, the market dose the same thing all the time in the same pattern and form, it repeat its self all the time, ones a cycle is completed another one beings regardless of what the news is saying the NFP last Friday is a big example, good news for the dollar yet sell off, Copi88 has inspired me to share a secret to any trader who feels his/her stop loss is been hunting by MM then i am here to reveal a secret Fibo number that is not in your Mt4 platform but the good news is that you can add it to your MT4 fibo settings and the number is 76.4 this number is the magic number but is completely hidden from the public that is why when you enter at 50% fibo or even 61.8 you get stop out and reverse. Challenge yourself to trade this level and sell if your stop will be hunt anymore it works any time frame but if you trade 1min, 5min, 15min and you don't look at the D1 W and M time frame for sure your success will be limited.

this chat will explain the secret and the magic of fibo number 76.4 and is part of my trading arsenal regardless of what the news is saying or what the MM are planning, avoid trading 50% of fibo or jumping in the middle of any trend it could come back and hunt you down and revers.

I am doing this for the very little traders who love this business passionately but can't find their way to success because i don't share secret in public because i am so jealous of the knowledge that i have which works for me and i don't hope to give them out easily to people who do not know the value, but Copi 88 has empress me with his idea and i have to give this one back to support the forum and everyone who is struggling in this business.

God bless all of us.

CNtrader calls it a behavior,Anyway pivots simplify lot of things but its important to understand the logic behind. Its like drawing a figure with added benefit of knowing the skeleton the anatomy.One artist drawing without that knowledge and another with knowledge with equal talent one with knowledge will execute much better art or at least great...

Harmonics is not new to this thread.Search Harmonics (this thread search function) and you'll see ton of info charts on this thread hence He was only sharing what has been shared before here.
You should focus on PPE extra info is there if you find it useful or not.Nothing is being derailed or sold.

His understanding and coaching of Forex trading is phenomenal, as this is an extremely tricky business. I'm happy to hear you're having great success. I just scanned all the Forex pairs you guys trade in 4HR and Daily time frames and placed the charts up that had Harmonic Patterns for you traders. I did this to compliment Davit's system and I asked him before I posted them. Harmonics are measured Fibonacci...

Taking in consideration all in forex is subjective (it don't exist any rule works always) and you have many ways to read same chart, the best rule for try have success is use less information possible. Less info to analyze, less noise to manage. I say this because if many people is getting benefit of this thread is because is a very simple rules system. This avoid some mistakes over analyzing info on chart. Everybody can add things for be more comfortable but personally i think its easier and effective check rejections for guess where are real SR areas as many members are doing here. And its cleaner too...

Its just a comment. Not a critic...

I am short on time but I wrote something very similar to your post. 🍌 Not exactly one below but very very similar.

Quoting Davit

Check out NU chart. Look at the spikes. Notice reversal followed by a spike. Typical trader might be thinking TDI up PA up arrows up lets buy! Nope! On my 1st post I highlighted in orange. Everything depends on location. This is type of thinking rarely touched upon at FF or in books.Its hard putting your head around but location pivots create that key aspect in my trading because now I have a clear line on the sand to make appropriate decision. This thinking has Elliot wave theory as background guide.Pivots are nothing but waves.Price always travels...

Agree Pivots zone corresponds to harmonics almost perfectly and I found this to be true why I always checked and admired Scott and CNtrader works.

Hello Traders good day everyone, i have made a short video of the chart in real live just now on EURUSD to proof why traders lose their SL and to proof that it has little or nothing to do with brokers or MM but everything to do with the trader and their entry. Over time traders have seen

PP, 50% fibo or even 61.8 fibo as strong levels to make their trading decisions, but today/this week i want to proof to you that PP/of 50% fibo is a bad levels to trade any sell position under this levels is most likely to go lose because price will only rally there...

Agree on 50 which I never rarely paid attention to. 78 I do.
Primary Derived Ratios

- 0.786 = Square root of 0.618
- 0.886 = Fourth roof of 0.618 or Square root of 0.786
- 1.130 = Fourth root of 1.618 or Square root of 1.27

Davit there is a few things I do not understand,

2. While back General Lee was posting charts with harmonics on, YOU said please stop posting, he is confusing new comers to the thread and he did stop.

Look @ the picture below, What the FUCK does it show? The pivots on there is just to blind you and the rest just to confuse the rest! This is how the trolls will infiltrate and your thread looses focus. WHAT HAPPEND TO USE MY TPL? Sorry again just for curtain members, again.

I'm in that too. 😊

Please consider that pound move took many by surprise, a sort of over reaction to local elections, but meaningful because related to Brexit that now it seems majority on Britons don't want any more.

However, truth to be told, greed is the worst and most dangerous enemy of a trader.

I'd hardly call it a flood. I don't think Davit is telling anyone to use Harmonics but he has said multiple times that Harmonic Patterns often line up with Pivot Points (not surprising considering both based off Fibonacci) . I personally don't use them but I do find them fascinating. I recommend having a read through CNtraders thread and watch some of his youtube videos.

Right understanding.I find it ironic and revealing that weakest traders get bend out of shape with slightest detour on the road where everyday in the markets is fresh new roads.Adaptability is critical for any aspiring trader!

When you have synthesized core Pivot trading values ,methods then nothing can shake you and you can read harmonics, fiction, math, music, chess,art and be aggrandized person/ trader instead of diminished trader.

Hi guys

We got AUD important data tonight. It could sky rocket in case rate same as current or plunge down if rate cut.

Plan ahead. Manage your account.

My personal opinion rate stays the same and AUD appreciates specially against the Yen and NZD.

I could be wrong of course and anyone can be wrong however this is based on data articles I read on Aussie economy.

as a footnote whatever you read about me from haters is not true. If statistically 95% retail traders lose money then it explains why I have such strong haters following me around! Losers like dragging others to their level! Birds of feathers flock together (why FF is such cesspool. It is miniature world at large) Notice when one croaks soon others join in the chorus! Why? There are more losers out there! Plain and simple
I am glad of ignore function at least this thread will stay CLEAN! from Trolls and Losers

The April 2019 Reserve Bank of Australia monetary policy decision is due at 0430GMT.

- ANZ are tipping a 25 bp rate cut
- Westpac, CBA and NAB are all in the 'on hold' camp.

NAB expects an easing bias to be confirmed, and they add that while not expecting a cut today they do see an 'appreciable risk' due to weak inflation.

One more ... with a take on RBNZ rates ...

RBA monetary policy decision on Tuesday, RBNZ on Wednesday - what to expect

Mon 6 May 2019 02:11:56 GMT

Author: Eamonn Sheridan | Category:  Central Banks

I found this interesting from ASB, a snippet from their their preview of the central banks this week.

- Wednesday's OCR announcement by the RBNZ is delicately poised. We expect the RBNZ to cut the OCR twice this year, with a cut at this week's announcement and a second one in August. But we see the probability of a cut this week as only marginally above 50%. Market pricing is similarly poised. As at the time of writing, markets have nearly priced in a 60% chance of a cut on Wednesday. Notably though, the market has priced in a full cut by August.
- ... the RBA decision is also going to be close-run thing. There, markets have priced in a 40% probability of a cut tomorrow. Meanwhile, in contrast to our NZ OCR view, we expect the RBA will remain on hold this year.

I bolded that bit - a very strong against consensus call from ASB indeed.

I'll have more to come on both the RBNZ and RBA this week.

Quoting Davit

Hi guys We got AUD important data tonight.It could sky rocket in case rate same as current or plunge down if rate cut. Plan ahead.Manage your account. My personal opinion rate stays the same and AUD appreciates specially against the Yen and NZD. I could be wrong of course and anyone can be wrong however this is based on data articles I read on Aussie economy. as a footnote whatever you read about me from haters is not true.If statistically 95% retail traders lose money then it explains why I have such strong haters following me around!Losers like...

I honestly do not know why you answer, defend, or give these losers a second of your time? This is what they want.....your reaction and perhaps something said in anger so they have even more ammunition in the future. People say and do things they regret when emotions run high and I think you are so much better a man than to have this vomit get under your skin. I think the Prime Minister of New Zealand made a great move when she banned the use of the shooters name in all media so this scum bag will only be known as the loser who took lives....but no one will ever know his name for the most part. Don't give these guys any more of your time imho. (Give it to me instead haaaaa)

The renewed tensions between US and China penalize CJ long trade as JPY is recovering as a safe-haven currency supported by a good PMI outcome too. 😊

The gap at the start of the week is still there to be closed.

Agree best stay clear of NZD if anything I am still long on AN which I am confident holding (old trades)but did not add any new NZD trades. Still short on GC and sold Yen cross the board.I think gaps will close they usually almost always do.

Its good posting here at Pivots.I feel I am with adults 😊👍

Look into clipboard. <https://www.forexfactory.com/showthr...9#post10525689> download template and indi This is complicated template which draws 4 variants of same indi. Just a footnote its not necessary to trade my system with harmonics as demonstrated myself asgharhussai Mundo Fibo38 ppxdf and many others here. Its just confluence but would not recommend getting mentally too involve in it that you forget this thread...

This is a good one (IMO). It's from the Russian site "Trading like a pro". What I like most is that it's on separate dashboard and doesn't clutter the charts so if you don't need extra confluence, you don't even check it. Harmonics could help but could also confuse, depends on the person and situation. Green pips all

I'm on GC short too. 😊

At the moment I'm giving back some floating profit, GBP has 7 lives like a cat, it's a kind of "strong weakness", I think the right attribute is resilient.

This pair is actually quite a good pair to trade if you know how to measure risk. GBP is bought in a Risk On and JPY is bought in a Risk Off environment and so this pair has very nice trending moves as the market moves from Risk Off to Risk on and Visa Versa.

Here is GJ with a couple of Risk On/ Off measures on it. Some very nice divergences on it. Definitely Risk Off this morning with the trade talks etc rumbling on. Nice big sell off in the equity markets with bonds being bought.

Pressure on Yen crosses and on UJ is enormous. Its like coil squeezed to the bottom ready to unsprung!
Trump can undo it by one tweet😂

Never ever seen any politician do foreign policy on tweeter!😂 Trump will go down in history books

We have not seen even tiny 20pips correction on UJ
World is wetting their pants and looking at the Yen for salvation and Japanese are like "We can't cut anymore"😂 Stay AWAY

Come on Trump just one winning tweet😂 "We have a deal!" and UJ back to 112

Why Japan is against the wall. Highest debt to GDP

I wrote a lot about this subject and helps to understand why spikes happen and why Stop hunting is real. Real in a sense indirect consequence of order fill.

What's going on with Yen pairs now looks exactly what it is.

UJ at 110 price needs to go down maybe 109.80- even 60 to take out stops and get large orders fill for long. When it drops down don't panic (most likely it will)

Maybe i am allowed here maybe not, maybe my view and concept is accepted maybe not but all the same tanks to the creator of this thread for having allowed me to respectively share my kind knowledge over this business, below are some of reactions from some traders here is what they posted on one of the thread here.

1) Wiped me out! I am done with EURUSD. I have tried to learn etc. Other pairs move differently. No break for me with this. Simply Wow....

2) I sure didn't see the reason for this large push up, no fantastic news for EURO and not that bad of news for US... guess people just wanted movement before that trade deal comes out. I thought we'd stay in range until that announcement, though. Bummer, not the direction I was looking for, either. I thought it would break south because we never got that great of a reaction to last week's fantastic numbers, thought it would retest that first before anything else.

3) Wow, these trade talks need to end now... what a move, quite unfortunate i was at the wrong end of it.

My question is why would any matured trader think that news makes the market? this is a hook and any trader how believe and follow this news theory is the fish in the hook, the market is a well computer program i said it before the week started after this bull cycle the bear cycle well continue new or no news.

News is only a catalyst/vehicle which drives the market to it programmed direction that is the news nothing more.

For the new Fx traders believing on this theory will save you lot of pain and time and also make you money, i do not share strategy or indicator and i believe no good strategy will easily be shared publicly but my strategy and how i trade is solidly build on this idea.

God bless all of us

Please i wouldn't like to make anyone loss money because of my post, first to trade this retracement i am hopping for, it must get to 61.8 or 76.4 depending on your account and your risky ability then you know where to take the trade and where to put stop loss, but first the price must close below 38.2 of fibo to make way for further. {image}

If not mistaken, I believe that there are thousands of ways to trade... The issue here is that this thread is for one specific way of trading and although you might have valuable insight you are not doing so within the context of the outlined method. Like we all have done...please start from page 1 and read the thread. Please do so...you information might be of value to us as long as it's within the method used.

To all of us who are in DD, please remember this is part of trading. Stand fast..! Buckle up and manage your trades properly. No one is exempt of losing trades...no one. If you have been following correctly this system, this method should have earned you enough money during the past couple of months that losses should come from these winning trades not your deposit. Either way rest assured this method will continue to earn enough to make up for these couple of weeks. But there is something even greater than just that. You will grow from this. Trust me trading is more about us than all other stuff combined.

Take time to reflect on yourself as a Trader and more importantly as a person and work on areas that you see needs adjusting. I understand how you feel, I am in the same situation. For me winning comes so easy with this method that yes it is an unusual place to be in. Do know that this will only make you stronger and will take your trading to a higher level.

Everyone here wants to earn more...everyone here wants to be a sniper...everyone here wants to load up on trades like Davit. Did you think it will happen without a trial, a test, a setback? Know that it is through these times that one learns, it is not when things go "right."

Embrace these moments...because if you use it to your advantage...the best is yet to come.

Seasoned traders, based on your experiences do these spikes contribute to lowering Reward to Risk asymmetry? for example EC here spikes and then corrects 50 pips settling at key fibo support areas which confluence with pivot areas {image}

You understand your question is meaningless. Depends where positions entered and how long you kept it and when you TP

Exemple on EC had you exited 1hr after spike it would of been good/Break Even or loss (entries are not known) but now after 3hrs its great and tomorrow may be a killer position at 5050

While its easy taking what I have done here for 3+yrs its also interesting slight breeze and leaves fall to the ground. Truly takes a human with a backbone to stand up for decency honesty and integrity.

“Stand up to hypocrisy. If you don't, the hypocrites will teach. Stand up to ignorance, because if you don't, the ignorant will run free to spread ignorance like a disease. Stand up for truth. If you don't, then there is no truth to your existence. If you don't stand up for all that is right, then understand that you are part of the reason why there is so much wrong in the world.”

In my culture when you break bread with friends share victories losses ideas music philosophy then it goes out the window in mere instant like nothing ever did matter then I question some people their purpose to be here.

Life is never all about money. We are real people! I spend endless hours here sharing mentoring lot of traders and its even puzzling to me why....
I certainly dont like attention...My desire is more about making connection.
Anyway needless to say my spirits are not great now.Has nothing to do with trading.I've been up and down and more up then down....

Deal not going well, and trump has officially imposed new tariffs on china imports. This is not good for the dollar and equities, and certainly JPY is favored as safe haven. Could this also drag down EU, GU and AU? Currently i wanna be a little careful because of the unnecessary volatility caused by the algos. Technically price finds a way to correct. In some ways its priced in already. Wont surprise me Trump and China find a face saving solution. Trump needs it for reelection and China needs the deal as well. Its not over yet. Negotiations still going,

I have avoided selling USD all week. Unless I see a great price pivot level I rather not get stuck with expensive swap situation. Example dont buy UJ even though seems attractive...now. Focus on crosses.

on EN starting to move south love Euro crosses margin wise cheap. Dislike GBP crosses takes way too much margin. 2x more. Something to think about.
If same set up is presented example GC and EC go with EC its cheaper.

Closed EC decent gain
at 57

Have lot more positions on CJ which is working nicely.EA big as well. Did not want to commit too much on EC since could of printed red...

Should EC bounce to 80-90 may short again back to 55-60

it is considered rude that your 1st post you are already coming in the house with "projects" indicators

Would of been lot more respectful you came here quietly and traded with indicators provided here...besides joining FF this year....read the disclaimer

Should there be a positive break on Chinese negotiations expect EA EN to drop maybe significantly specially EN 68 possible and that goes for Yen pairs as well.What's holding up EA EN is trade tension.

It would be hard to imagine Trump administration fail on this.It has greater ramifications from stocks to FX globally as well.

would really like to see usd/cad hit a good r pivot next week to buy it

Dont buy USD its likely to go into deeper correction UC in my view is sell only.

You have to develop sense of fundamentals when sentiment is shifting and combine that with technical then obviously CAD had been oversold and now slowly gaining and same on AU its only buy from now on.

Today's CPI red is not looking good for USD.Do your calendar analyses overtime you will develop good grasp on fundies.

Don't be the guy who buys at the top or sells at the bottom

Lots of confluence on EN for deeper correction.

I am happy to be part of the best thread of FF.
I had an Excellent week, despite I took a loss to keep my risk management within the tolerable, cutting loss when my floating reached 10% of my capital.
So, I closed a trade in loss of us$ 538.12 .
Still, my profit has been consistent and above the average of the past 14 weeks.
Profit in May . (05/01 to 05/10 Gain: 4.72% -- us$ 1,158.23)
AVERAGE 14 weeks . (us$ 9,132.58 / 14 weeks -- us$ 652.00)

Thanks God, Thank you Davit, and also thanks to you that, in some way, also contributes to the consistency of this thread . !!!!

I agree. 😊

This morning's data for EUR was mixed, good for Germany, bad for France and Italy. Despite this, the EUR is still floating and JPY, although a little weaker than yesterday, is still bought.

In the event of an agreement between the US and China, EN and EA should fall significantly. This lack of agreement keeps everything paralyzed and there is also the risk of a negative escalation.

Best regards,

Outstanding job! You and many others perform here with great results and its refreshing. Results like this week after week smash the rattle of my haters who have nothing better to do then keep mentioning my name. Its paradoxical if I am a loser, uneducated ,untalented,gambler then why bother reading my thread or commenting about me if I am all that they say I am. I basically feel pity for these guys that they must lack such self esteem that they need to troll me to feel better about their miserable lives.It has no bearing on my life.I will continue elevating my performance week after week. 😎🏍️

April started rough for me. Not down but not great either. Made mistakes. Its fine mistakes happen. Lets see how next 2 weeks go. Also unusual conditions of the market with yen dominating and basically choking up the trades. Happens. Certainly did not expect a tweet from Trump to rattle FX and Wall Street

That was a X factor

Considering the time to return "in the flow" after a holiday I am very satisfied with my results of this week. 😊

It's made both of collection i.e. the trades on GBP of the previous week and of sowing i.e. the trades on JPY pairs currently running in moderate DD.

The outcome of these operations will greatly depend on the China / US trade. On a side note AC could become interesting.

Looks like Chinese negotiations failed and we got "Talks may resume in Beijing" Basically a softer blow for the markets.

Interesting that UJ is going north hence it is conceivable to assume China trade crises has already been priced in.

CJ keeps giving away today. {image}

I added more on it after the CAD positive news. Not worrying about in fact I don't worry at all when trading. If needs be I take a loss and that's that cost of doing business.

In restaurant business one major snow storm can kill months of profits....at least in forex we got another day week to recover and resume. Try doing that if you are a farmer and experience drought weeks after weeks like in CA

When people say forex is not a business a gambling activity then I suggest these folks to consider what adds one has for example opening a restaurant.

80% restaurants fail within 5yrs in fact most don't make profits for years. Need minimum 100-150k initial investment for small place and that may never be recovered. Not even talking about hard labor that goes into it. In comparison Forex is heaven. You pay no overhead, insurance to employees, products that can spoil, weather, stress when it's empty etc.

Forex your job is basically educating yourself and each month, year you build your knowledge until you become your own business! It's you now only you.

You invest in yourself and you are walking talking money making machine! 🍷👍

{quote} Lol it is funny you mention restaurant business, I partnered in a restaurant in DC and Trump killed it, most of the restaurant businesses in that area went bankrupt after Trump took office. I wish I had invested that money in Davit's Pivots instead. I closed my CJ trades at the top earlier and re-eneted at the bottom again, still holding those trades.

Tough business I know it well. Managed many before shifting gears. 50k forex investment in my opinion is lot more "safer" then opening a new business.

Your out of packet expense in forex is minimal and shhhhhhhhhh you can claim them on taxes....

If you are making 10% out 90% investment as pure profit in restaurant business you are doing good but think if you have a pizza joint how many pizzas you have to sell to make even 500 a day profit.....A lot remember only 10% profit margin...

Now you see investing on yourself in forex on longer term is solid business decision. Your experience is compounding factor. Example they were folks here a year ago not doing good and now making solid profits that's huge improvement in a year and think about 3-5 year projection plus compounding gains...

You retain what you know. Yourself is your business

This: <https://www.zerohedge.com/news/2019-...-billion-china> Guess market will open with a gap down on JPY pairs?

Its probable and certainly not a good news however process to begin is not exactly has been implemented and became the law.Trump is putting the pressure on the Chinese to concede to a deal.

From all the articles I read looks like taxes on goods will be paid by American importers which basically hurts the Americans.So we have income generated by American tax payer going to American treasury to subsidize American farmers.... 🤔

The whole thing is wrong.Trump got it wrong furthermore American importers must raise prices of goods which will be passed on to US consumers...more taxes paid by Americans on higher cost items....

Again middle class and poor get the squeeze.

"This is ugly. The tariffs imposed last night are a tax on U.S. companies and consumers, not the Chinese," said Carl Weinberg, chief international economist with High Frequency Economics, in a report. "U.S. consumers will continue to buy stuff from China because there are not alternative sources for most of it."

{quote} Really bad for the dollar. This decreases the employment.

I think US is frustrated by Chinese stealing US intellectual properties both military and on US companies for decades without impunity and Trade agreement has lot of these in it and Chinese back paddled virtually everything it was negotiated before.

My thinking is Chinese are stalling to see who will win the White house if Dems then Stealing will continue...as usual.Don't blame Trump entirely but I am certain there is middle ground.

Agree tariffs will reduce Employment on both US and Chinese side.

Personally Trump is treating running a country to making a real estate deal.Its not the same thing.Lot is at stake here.

Hi guys

All key Pivot traders are minimum low impact and I changed the settings to stop the flood of new traders.

Less distraction and they should earn their badge before able to post here. Will raise higher next time around until once again key pivot traders reach medium impact. Some of you may feel left out but this is something that must be done. Don't have the time and energy to monitor the posts here constantly and apparently bold disclaimer on 1st page does nothing....hence why my decision.

Points that I am Considering Next Week. (EDT TIME)

The crisis in trade talks weighed heavily on markets, helping the USD and the JPY, but the moves were not even.

Hi Guys

Weathering the storm. Not much to do except allow market to rebound. Trump really has been on roller coaster ride on China and many other issues.

Whoever is advising Trump is seriously misguided. Trade war will hurt Americans and slow down our economy. It's not if but how quickly this happens.

Sad affairs we elected a total lunatic at White House. Starts tweeting at 6am barraging on China then expects them to fold over. People nations have their pride you don't win agreements in bullying opponents. This kindergarten manner of running the country is jaw dropping unreal. I feel like I am watching a bad series on Amazon Prime but it's not unfortunately.

People who rally about Trump mostly are ignorant how trade war will hurt them badly and this nation.

AUD is taking a beating badly victim of trade war same NZD and the CAD. CAD fundies are good last employment numbers were real green and Australian economy is on decent footing as well and both cases these should be traded lot higher but pressure on China keeping these risk on.

AU can't even break 6950 that's unreal!

Hey Davit and Friends,

I was moved to built a website a few weeks ago warning about how dangerous Mr. Trump based on free www.Youtube.com videos by mental health experts (psychologist and psychiatrist) and other politicians using the keywords: "Trump Mental Health". It coincided with what I thought since his taking office and even before that. In conclusion, this a totally crazy dangerous malignant narcissistic and lying clown on stage of the world - he is embarrassing Americas and laugh of Trump worldwide:

<https://donaldduckdownfall.wixsite.com/donaldtrump>

Please take this serious as this clown as his finger on atomic ballistic missiles - just like the other Clowns in Russia, Korea, etc. I truly hope he is impeached before something really happens for lying, obstruction, contempt of court and treason - like the 28 or so convicted Trump helpers - remember the proverb "...birds of a feather flock together." This doesn't even touch on Trump's ignorant beliefs geopolitics (Europe, Russia, China, Iran etc,) and that the issue of Green-House effect which is already showing provable scientific data.

Best wishes to all and good luck to all of us as well as the generations to come !

{quote} Davit told me once, don't have a bias against something. Just go with PA. That's the beauty of probability. AC at major reversal point, yes of course it still have a room to go but we don't know it. We trust system and we trust PA. Trade ether works or not. Look at NZD - rate cut and yet it's still where it was. Market will do what it wants to do. Despite news and decisions. Besides that MM wants to take your money they also control balance. Overthinking killing opportunities. Just my opinion.

Here is a good book to read and learn some of the mental strategies of top traders.

Top traders know their own strengths and weaknesses, and they know how to cope with their strengths and weaknesses every day.

Do your own self evaluation and find your own solutions.

these books are great.

in my way of thinking, as long as we do not understand the importance of doing the calendar of events all week, since fundamental movements represent so much more than our graphical analyzes.

For some who still have doubts about it, open the youtube, and type "anton kreil" and they're going to be scared of what goes on behind the scenes in forex, in addition to what the markets makers usually does.

Hi guys

USD dominating everything Yen an exception. Market still nervous about Trade wars and why AUD at 6928 can barely move in 8hrs

Trump totally messed up basically all markets and now creating conflict in Persian Gulf

This is not ideal swing trading environment. Its more USD choking everything unless some breakthrough on China or Feds take drastic action and announce rate cut to bring USD down. This situation is not good for US economy and for that matter world economy.

Not adding new trades. Nothing looks what it should be doing...normally but this is not normal times.

Still have AC on watch list. Historical low

The reason not touching Gulf crises may surge oil prices thus surge the CAD and also AUD looks like dead horse can't even go up 10pips on USD.

PA does not look promising for bull action here...although mighty tempting....if only AUD showed some life {quote} I'm in loss this month. The only question is how big it will be. Quarter started positive, this month negative, next month positive I guess 😊 Anyways, it's only money ...

Let me take the opportunity to say YES losses can occur in this business.I am down for the month (month's not over yet) but also know I feel super confident I will hit my 2nd Q with green profits.That's the spirit set backs are just that but your attitude resilience and fortitude that matters.

I have been in DD on the USD/CAD since April 23rd. However , no worries , entries were very good , Financial and Geopolitical News wasn't so great for me , a mixed bag actually which did not materialize into a firm direction for this pair.

Due to proper account management as a direct result from paying very close attention to the teachings of DAVIT , MARK DOUGLAS , and a few others on this thread , I am accomplishing a miracle in my LIVE TRADING ACCOUNT.

PATIENCE , and PIVOT POINTS=SUCCESS.

All of which was impossible for me to grasp until I found DAVIT'S THREAD.

ARMENIA , THANK YOU for all of the significant contributions to this World.

Sincerely ,
GreenEarth

Kirk Kerkorian who you mentioned Davit, an American Armenian business man made Las Vegas a large success with his Casino Empire and MGM Resorts. My family has benefited because of him as my wife has been employed as a High Limit Blackjack dealer there since 2004. Truly a man with talent and a vision.

AUD is the big sick, it can't get up in any way. 😊

On one hand the China / US trade war and from the other the fundamental data that are not good.

We'll see if the elections move something, for the moment I watch and manage my DD.

I am happy to be part of the best thread of FF. I had an Excellent week, despite I took a loss to keep my risk management within the tolerable, cutting loss when my floating reached 10% of my capital. So, I closed a trade in loss of us$ 538.12 . Still, my profit has been consistent and above the average of the past 14 weeks. Profit in May . (05/01 to 05/10 Gain: 4.72% -- us$ 1,158.23) AVERAGE 14 weeks . (us$ 9,132.58 / 14 weeks -- us$ 652.00) Thanks God, Thank you Davit, and also thanks to you that, in some way, also contributes to the consistency...

I am happy to be part of the best thread of FF.

this week I was below my expectations. However by the fact that I have already reached 50% of my monthly average, then I opted for risk aversion not adding new trades. My floating trades are still high and I should keep the same idea next week.

Profit in May (1/2 month) . (05/01 to 05/17 Gain: 5.85% -- us$ 1,455.88)

AVERAGE 15 weeks . (us$ 9,430.23 / 15 weeks -- us$ 628.00)

I expect the Aussie dollar to rebound now that ScoMo has been re-elected. No doubt the Kiwi dollar will slowly follow in its footsteps. The polls in Australia have been predicting the Labor Party to win for the last three years, instead the Liberal/National coalition will continue to govern. When Labour won the election in NZ two years ago, there was a big drop in the Kiwi dollar and business confidence dropped significantly and never recovered. I believe this 'bad news' was already baked in the Aussie dollar from which I now expect it to recover,...

Hi guys

To add to your post China is showing restraint and advising US same. There is prospect of Trade war solution.

The Pink elephant in the room is Rate decision on June 4th by RBA. My opinion is rate will stay the same considering AUD is already dangerously too low and New PM Scott Morrison may change the sentiment for positive.

In Forex nothing goes straight down endlessly.

April has not been good for me. I accept it and move on. It's a marathon. My style of trading and my positive attitude has not been altered. 😊👌

UK inflation: Wednesday, 4:30. Consumer price action has moderated in recent months, with headline inflation dropping to 1.9% year over year. Core CPI stood at similar levels in March, at 1.8%. Any rise in inflation will increase the chances of a rate hike by the BOE, assuming Brexit is resolved, which is a big if.

14:00 USD FOMC Meeting Minutes

FOMC meeting minutes: The Federal Reserve left its interest rates unchanged in May and did not hint it is set to cut interest rates, contrary to investors' expectations. Fed Chair Jerome Powell insisted that the factors behind low inflation are temporary and highlighted the upbeat economic indicators. Since then, both the jobs report and the inflation report were more than OK. While the minutes document a meeting that was held before the trade war flared up, it is important to note that it is redacted until the very last moment and is designed for markets' consumption. The minutes may be somewhat more dovish than Powell's comments, providing some solace to markets. We may see that some members of the all-powerful central bank wanted to cut interest rates this year.

Euro-zone PMIs: Thursday morning: France at 3:15, Germany at 4:30, and the euro-zone at 4:00. Markit's forward-looking surveys are well-correlated with actual growth figures and are closely watched by markets. The most significant indicator is Germany's manufacturing purchasing managers' index. The score stood at 44.4 points in May, showing that the locomotive of the euro-zone is contracting quite substantially. Any score below 50 represents contraction. The services sector is doing better, and not only in the continent's largest economy but at 52.8 points, the currency bloc is only experiencing meager growth. Markets will want to see improvements now.

Day 1 EUR European Parliamentary Elections

7:30 EUR ECB Monetary Policy Meeting Accounts

ECB meeting minutes: The European Central Bank left its policy unchanged but reiterated that risks are moving to the downside. While some economic indicators have been improving, uncertainty remains high in light of the US-Chinese trade war, Brexit, and other factors. The document will likely repeat a cautious outlook.

European elections: Thursday-Sunday. Citizens of the 28 member states, including the UK, will vote in a new European parliament. The body, based in Brussels and in Strasbourg, has limited clout over European matters, but its voice and its composition are important. Anti-immigration, euroskeptic parties are expected to make considerable gains after five turbulent years that saw an immigration crisis, Brexit, the rise of Donald Trump, rising employment, but high uncertainty about the future. A substantial gain for radical parties may weigh on the euro. A special focus will be given to the vote in the UK. If the ruling Conservative Party comes out with a poor outcome, the pressure on PM Theresa May to resign will likely mount. An unimpressive result for the opposition Labour will also increase the internal divide. The vote may prove a turning point in the never-ending Brexit process.

Fri May 24

4:30 GBP Retail Sales m/m 1.1%

UK retail sales: UK shoppers were out and about in March and the volume of sales increased by a whopping 1.1%. The data for April may be different, as Easter came later. We may see another volatile outcome. In any case, the focus will soon turn back to Brexit.

Day 2 EUR European Parliamentary Elections

8:30 USD Core Durable Goods Orders m/m 0.4%

USD Durable Goods Orders m/m 2.7%

Tentative USD Treasury Currency Report

US durable goods orders: Investment has been lagging in comparison to other parts of the US economy. The data for April, released now, will provide a better insight into GDP growth in the second quarter of the year. Headline orders rose by 2.7% in March but core ones advanced by only 0.4%. The focus remains on core figures due to the high volatility of the headline data, heavily influenced by aircraft sales.

Will all AUd gap close? May not, Trump's curve ball still rolling.If he can make America breath again that would be great news.
Takes $$ from Joe importer and gives it to Tom the farmer and declares he is bringing billions back to US😄the irony of it.
Overwhelming number of farmers plain want to make a living doing farming not government hand outs!They prefer market dictate prices instead of artificial tariffs.
China already stopped buying soy bean and corn next and already cancelled pork. Great Job TRUMP make America poorer!🙄 Next on the line is Walmart,Target,Auto Zone,Harbor Fright,Kmart,Dollar stores etc.Its not just farmers going to get hurt.

Hi guys

Some Nice recovery of AUD pairs.Still holding for lot more.

Key date AUD rate decision June 4th and any breakthrough on Tariffs will blast AUD north.

General observations.

Pivots are not subjective.Its real measurement Swing High Low divide in half project Fib levels both directions up and down from half mark.It has nothing to do about your feelings or thoughts.Its pure MATH

Hindsight analyses is mostly reserved for amateur traders projecting their prowess of analyses after the fact! That is as easy as flashing a toilet!USELESS

There is nobody out there other then inside circle of Trump that could of predicted Chinese backpedaling on former agreements and Trump raising the Tariffs! Anyone who comes and writes about "fundamentals" after this episode is severely distorting reality.

Nothing is changed AT Pivots we will continue pile the money!

A bit of a different approach, 'scalping' the Aussie and Kiwi dollar and some other pairs between pivot levels.

In case you are wondering, I also reduced my drawdown by 50%.

Hi guys

Actually read the whole thing. Kind of mix bag statement why market is confused to be bullish or hawkish. There are hints that RBA is willing to cut twice this year also may not depending on growth, job market. It looks like they very well may keep the rate same in June 4th. Should China trade dispute get resolved it will boost Aussie economy and may change RBA projections. Below sounds bullish"

Growth in employment in the March quarter had been strong, following similar outcomes over much of 2018. Most of the growth in employment since mid 2018 had been in full-time employment. The unemployment rate had remained around 5 per cent in March. Members observed that conditions in the labour market had signalled a significantly stronger pace of economic activity since mid 2018 than indicated by the GDP data. Leading indicators of labour demand had eased over recent months and provided a mixed picture of the near-term outlook. As a result, employment growth was expected to be similar to the growth rate of the working-age population in the near term. The unemployment rate was expected to remain around 5 per cent through most of the forecast period, before declining to around 4¾ per cent in 2021.

Members noted that the forecasts for the labour market suggested that there would be some spare capacity in the labour market throughout the forecast period, although there was uncertainty about how quickly the spare capacity would decline and how progress would feed into wage pressures. The central forecast was for wages growth to pick up gradually. In combination, the forecasts for wages growth and consumer price inflation implied that real consumer wage growth would be low but positive over the forecast period.

This is the part kind of confusing and very dovish. Note they don't say it's their view it's "Financial market participants" view

Financial market participants' expectations of cash rate cuts were brought further forward following the release of the March quarter CPI. Financial market pricing implied that the cash rate was expected to be lowered by 25 basis points within the next three months and again by the end of 2019.

Given vague statement of RBA and AUD having been severely over sold I am holding my positions since technicals call for correction. Fact is they kept the rate same!

The Decision

The Board decided to leave the cash rate unchanged at 1.5 per cent.

Hi friend

Its your trades and you manage best you can however why bail out from EA when it possibly hit swing top and now descending.

Looks to me MM closed the gap by taking advantage of RBA weak statement but that's done deal...tomorrow another day another Price Action.

Success is a habit practice it daily

Davit, you are probably right. However I felt the movement in the EA short was a dead issue till June 03 news, secondly it freed up margin for me on something that has better promise of moving. By admission, I'm still learning, though I've made good money because of this method, but also I've given up good money by market conditions or by bad decisions. Granted being on the razors edge is no fun, as it's sharp on both sides. Now, watch EA take off short just to prove

I made a mistake. Obviously I am the runt of the litter here, nothing to be proud of neither. If anything I appreciate you looking out for me. Learning the news late is a killer, that I need to fix. Need to not let emotion get to me as well.

Diamondminer , through Davit's thread , the knowledge gained here , personally , I reached the point where managing my account much better enabled me to TRULY TRADE STRESS FREE !!!! I'm a retired firefighter , geared to do things quickly , decisively. Once I was able to S--L--O--W D--O--W--N , it all "clicked".

I didn't realize at the time that EMOTION was indeed CONTROLLING ME , but , was unwilling to accept it , and I was the one reacting at the wrong times.

Reading your post was a great reminder to me about how I used to be. PATIENCE had to define me if I was going to be truly successful as a retail trader.

We are so lucky here on this thread , surrounded by AMAZING HUMAN BEINGS who treat us and educate us to be TRADING PROFESSIONALS from home.

Thanks for the reminder , GreenEarth

GreenEarth, it's an honor to fly with you eagles. I was patient for days, just did a knee Jerk reaction after the MM spike. Somehow it pushed my buttons. Guess I never experienced a dead market before, not like this one. Knew it was wrong after I went out, it wasn't over money, but possibly about being wrong. There is a lot to learn here and the psychology of trading is a good part of it here. I can see here one must let time be your best FRIEND and it will.

Thank You

Diamondminer , I experienced those exact psychological setbacks too many times to count. Oddly enough those psychological urges still persist , but now , I am a MENTAL WARRIOR because of DAVIT'S SYSTEM. Now I stand strong in the face of adversity , quite a change for me. Green Pips to you , and everyone else.

GM Davit and my other Pivoter Friends,

I wanted to share my "Button" pair selector that I have modified separating Davit's most traded pairs and their general direction - Buy or Trade Long and Sell or Go Trade Short.

It just helps me go thru the selected Pairs quicker and to quickly reminds me of the suggested Pair direction as per Davit:

EURUSD	EURAUD
NZBIDPY	GBFUSD

Yes, fundamentals may change preferences.

Recently, I admit that I have taken NZD Long (AUDNZD) that remains in question.

You may recall, Davit's NZDCAD trades Long NZD, with not a happy result.

Hi John

I would suggest scrape everything on that list and trades should be taken on each individual pair according to system rules.

AUDNZD Look at AN. Note previous High and a pair that trades well between R38, PP, S38. Low ADR. This has become a preferred pair for me. See other posts. Hurdle ahead R38 and London Open, then Daily Open. As a less aggressive trader, I prefer a retest of the High near 1.0600. For the technical, M30 Volatility Bands are in a squeeze! AUD scene far from settled? The Market shall decide! {image}

Hi guys some USD bears getting in FINALLY

Sick of USD getting lapped up like there is no tomorrow 😊 Its not bullet proof

Cracks are starting to show and leather inseams are tearing up. What's funny the idiotic pencil pusher Jeremy Powell acts like nothing is wrong when dollar index was at 98 and Trade War going on full swing. Current Feds leadership is out of touch what's coming and what's coming is collapse of the markets if Trump keeps this up.

With so much tension on China dont expect Goods ordered to be green. If prints red USD may get another round of Bear action.

{quote} I am happy to be part of the best thread of FF. this week I was below my expectations. I measure my performance by Quarters like any other business. 1Q very green 2Q not over yet but April was green May probably red but lot smaller red then April green and looking to profitable June to conclude 2Q

Do your calendar and stick to program.

UK PM May: I Will Resign on June 7 <https://www.forexfactory.com/news/91...resign-on-june>

I see this more positive for GBP

Different PM fresh ideas and may come to resolution and GBP could sky rocket up. Still holding EG shorts. Had opportunity to close 3times for profit and each time PA went right back up hence why. Happens when you want most gains and PA just not complying ...Patience!

I rather see our industries move back to Mexico our southern neighbor and US. Helping them out and stopping immigration due to economics and having more friendly country to deal with. China has become too arrogant and too infringed in piracy from state level to regular people. It is ironic only 30yrs ago China was heavily depended on the West for its very existence and now it has become a force that can cripple the world. How China thanks the west for helping her by forcing a theft! Not the best way to say THANK YOU Love this women! American war machine is targeting Iran now. Looks like we did a "great" job on Iraq Libya Syria making a huge mess there and now targeting Iran.

This women deserves a hug for standing up and speaking her mind. It would not be improbable to have Saudis themselves damaged the ships or CIA since they love to see US get involve and incidentally Trump went rush in to sell more weapons to Saudis. Keeping the weapons makers in US stocks nice n high...Conflicts sell more weapons!Biggest Pentagon contracts go to top 5 US weapon makers and they lobby heavily to get the $$ come back to them.

I just hope US does not fall apart because of recklessness of its leaders.

Disliked

Please stop posting typical FX "technical analyses" from other sites focus on PPE

Once you read crap it gets in your head if you take it seriously then dilutes your own assessment. Big day for NZD and good chance BULLS take over! EN could hit 1.70 even below. It has NOTHING to do with any MA's 200 or 100 or 20

I had to attend an offsite meeting at my job, it took me away from trading for a couple of days. 😊

I couldn't even look at markets and now I see the Trade Manager closed my EA short on trailing stop.

In hindsight I could probably chose better trailing params, however I made a good profit and you can't expect the same adaptive behavior as from a trader in person, at least using this simple expert.

Closed NZD and holding additional entries pending news on Cad, Aud, NZD....focusing on Cad atm but very happy with last two days results because all trades were small entries, none taking any heat worth noting...all taken at key pivot areas etc. and the results are obvious..(ps...NOK was just an experiment based on oil price....horrible spreads and not worth trading unless perhaps a long term swing?)

I am short USD/CAD from 1.3492

As Davit stated , mixed data this morning , although I see the decline in Pending Home Sales as a "hidden gem" , fundamentally.

This can be confirmed in part with tomorrow's US Personal Income Expenditures IF it posts ANY decline , the larger decline the better for the CAD. Personal Income Expenditures accounts for a full 2/3rd of the US GDP.

Additionally , if the Canadian GDP simply meets expectations ,the ability to smash through R38 is quite easily possible to head South to the WPP , regardless of where WTI is trading at (unless it posts a 4-5% drop, after all ANYTHING is possible in Forex).

Later today the EIA Crude Stock Change may factor into the equation as well.

I booked profit yesterday going short from the spike , got in at 1.3536 and out at 1.3512. I was hesitant to re-enter , short, at the 1.3520's , so I stayed on the sidelines.

PIVOT POINTS +PA+PATIENCE=PROFIT !!!!!

The BEST thread on the Web , right here folks , no question !!!

DAVIT , I will NEVER EVER be able to thank you enough for everything that you have done for me. There is only one you , after you were born , "they" broke the mould. YOU MAKE THIS WORLD A BETTER PLACE !!!

Sincerely ,
GreenEarth

Okay this one is not on the list, and not for the faint of heart. Two Harmonic patterns popped on the H4 with the long candle. She's a little wild like the Senoritas in Mexico. Ay Carumba! Mucha Caliente! I always give it lots of room, and I never trade a BIG amount on it. That's financial suicide. I just entered this trade and found myself -$42 trade within minutes. Trade at your own peril on this one. I've won on it more times than I've lost, plus I looked in the fridge and I'm down to two Corona's. So I have a dilemma, I need some beer money! When I enter I use a 1000 pip limit and a 1000 pip stop, then adjust accordingly. I call this the Corona trade and the theory here is that it is like doing a little front running. Tomorrow the Hard working Mexicans that are in the United States will get paid. Then over the course of the next few days they will wire home BILLIONS of $USD. Plus the USD is really strong right now so we are already looking for a pullback on it. To me conditions look ideal this month. Having said that I was wrong once, however I was mistaken. When I do this trade I look at where the USD is and if it's hovering at the WPP or Support levels then I'm not interested.

UPDATE ON THIS ONE: PERHAPS NOT SUCH A HOT PLAN THIS MONTH. Quite often you'll see this shoot up before it goes down and I'd been waiting for it. TRUMP tweeted he's going to slap Tariffs on Mexico by June 10 if they don't slow down Migration. The Donald effect strikes again even when you do your homework and review the Calendar before placing a trade. Maybe we need to subscribe to his Twitter and start a new thread the DONALD EFFECT, and trade off of his Tweets.

Things are getting serious. 😊

Extra strong YEN is smashing everything, I'm long EJ in deep DD WS100 is decisive level before considering taking some loss.

And yesterday I began to build long positions on CJ too early.

It will be important CAD GDP later today and of course any good news coming from "Twitting Trump" because this is the crazy variable that rules the market.

Elected to close +1288.2 Small positions AUDJPY Closed 150.1. I do not like to be exposed loaded in more than one pair. Conservative, yes!

1. End of Month - squaring positions
2. USD News 8.30am
3. Would have preferred to see other JPY pairs showing better reversals CADJPY dropped through $100
4. Accept what Market offers on this date
5. Quell Greed is also important!

Trump making the Peso so weak that it becomes even more attractive to migrate to US 😊

Higher the tariffs go weaker it will become and more will flood the border. He is a "calm stable Genius" 😊

All I can say we will become poorer pay 25% To China and Pay maybe 25 to Mexico and start seeing shops businesses close one after another. Great he knows what he is doing because he is "calm stable genius"

Sad part Democrats have nobody to challenge him and Joe Biden just does not have any new ideas ZERO. Just trying to win a presidency simply going against Trump is not enough. You got to have something to the table.

USD strength is unbearable.CAD despite of green numbers can't push lower...at least today so far.Obnoxious of Yen is getting on my nerves.Hate this currency with a passion.Sombody sneezes and fking currency takes off like there is an earthquake!Its just Trump market should ignore this buffoon.

June could become USD correction specially once Tariffs start taking their effect slowing retail and unemployment going up.

I am holding my UC shorts with confidence

Anyone holding Cad shorts could have a long wait ahead.....Yesterday VP Pense visited Canada with nothing accomplished regarding the ratification of NAFTA because his Boss pretty much threw a wrench into talks with more threats to Mexico....which effect everything to do with Canada.....then we have Oil (WTI) in the toilet, then we have China stopping imports of 2 billion worth of Canola, so just because we had some nice green results this morning, they were not powerful enough to effect the currency as they normally should. The last time I witnessed such skittish markets was 9/11 and it took months to settle down. Anyway, my point is caution is needed trading Cad at this point. (However, oil could bounce here so pray for a gusher..lol)

Swede , I agree.

However , anything can happen in Forex as we know.

I am still holding my shorts on the USD/CAD.

I am cognizant of the 1.3663 top on the Daily Chart on December 31 , 2018. Totally not out of the picture.

Trump has upset the World's Trading Partners with the US.

I can't see how this will bode well for the US. Counter tariffs will erode any personal wage gains immediately.

Swede , thank you for the post because balanced dialogue helps everyone on this thread as well.

Sincerely ,
GreenEarth

once this thing is over Usd/Cad might fall like a brick, in fact, Cad is doing pretty good considering that down move on Oil

I agree....I'm actually talking to myself to stay with the program....small manageable portions, predetermined risk with a hard or mental stop, manage greed by accepting volatile conditions and taking profits early at key levels instead of holding for the big score (which seldom ever happens anyway) and keep abreast of news with Cad....will nafta ever get resolved.?.....will the Chinese keep up the treats in retaliation of our holding CFO for Hwaui?...will oil start to recover? When can I go on another cruise?. Ok, skip the last one but now more than ever pay attention.!!! These are the times when profits can evaporate for even the best traders.... 😊💥

SWEDEN , STAY WITH THE PROGRAM !!!!! This is the BEST program on Earth !!!!!

Stay positive.

Being a Canadian , NAFTA was a terrible Trade Agreement from the start , and still is. The Leaders that initiated it were/are crooks. Wall Street is full of crooks.

However , let's forget about all of that and focus on Trading , right here at PIVOT POINT TRADING !!!!!

Great to know that you are taking profits , whether it is early may be frustrating , but , YOU WILL NEVER GO BROKE TAKING PROFITS !!!

OIL , is a very , very interesting commodity.

I have to keep telling myself , forget about everything and focus on the trade in front of me , on the chart right in front of ME !!!

Today was another excellent day for me and now that I am done trading for the day I am asking myself WHY the USD should have blown up past 1.36 but didn't due to the massive 2 day plunge with oil.

Stay POSITIVE , as long as we all stick to this program , our lives will be much better for it.

STAY POSITIVE ,
